IF YOU WANT TO BE A RESPONSIBLE CAREGIVER, WHO CAN GUARANTEE THE NEW MEMBER OF THE FAMILY THE QUALITY OF LIFE IT DESERVES, make sure ...

1. You know the implications it will have in your life
2. You are aware of the responsibility it entails
3. You have time and space
4. You have informed yourself about the characteristics, character and vitality of the animal
5. The enthusiasm for sharing your life with an animal is not fleeting.

Do you know your obligations as ouner of a companion animal?

IN ADDITION TO PROVIDING FOR THEIR NEEDS IN YOUR HOME, YOU MUST ENSURE GOOD SOCIAL COEXISTENCE

- Find out about the obligation to identify your companion animal.

- Ask about the rules of your homeowners' association regarding the keeping of animals and the ordinance on animals of your municipality, as well as the rules for walking the animal and the areas to which it has access on public roads.

- Consult your vet about the vaccinations and treatments that are compulsory in your Autonomous Community, and take advice in order to make the right decision to prevent animals from reproducing out of control.

- Always pick up the droppings left on the street.

- Respect road safety when travelling with your animal in the car, and remember to AVOID leaving the animal alone in the car.

- Know the regulations for buses, metro or other means of transport, which may vary depending on the municipality.

- If you are travelling without your companion animal, make sure that someone will take care of it or take it to an authorised kennel.

- If you are travelling to another country, take with you the European pet passport or the corresponding veterinary certificate required by the country of destination and find out about the requirements both on entering that country and on your return to Spain.
